Since some are smaller than larger-horsepower engines, it is possible to double up and use them in tandem on pontoons and small trawlers.

But the engines are still common enough. The turbojet itself though is a different story. Those parts are getting harder to find and more expensive every year. Evinrude was owned by OMC back then, they are now owned by BRP. When BRP bought Evinrude, they discontinued alot of stuff, including alot of parts for those turbojets.

I have a 115 hp Turbo Jet JEDP (OMC/Evinrude) in a '95 Sunburst, Sizzler boat. The mechanic that checked it told me I had compression problems.

Cylinder #1 - 65. #2 - 110, #3 - 105, #4 - 115. He told me the engine would need a complete overhaul at $2450 to $2950. The boat itself is in fair condition so it is not worth that much.
